Headline:
Sunshine and showers by day - dry and chilly nights.

This Evening and Tonight:
Cloud breaks up in the evening, and showers die away leading to a largely dry and chilly night, with the potential for rural frost. Towards dawn the odd shower could start up again, mainly in Cheshire. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Friday:
Patchy cloud, scattered showers and sunny spells through the day. The showers may be heavy, contain hail and be wintry over high ground. Feeling cold and turning dry again overnight. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Sunshine and showers by day over the weekend, with dry and chilly nights. Heavy rain arrives from the west on Monday, bringing strong winds and coastal gales. Nights turning warmer.
